BEST WISHES TO Woody

W

e wish Woody all the best in his new position as Deputy Superintendent at Yosemite National Park. His 21 years here have gone by quickly. They have been extremely rewarding for all of us, and we have greatly appreciated his vision, his experience, his quiet manner in getting things done, his ability to acquire funds for the Santa Monicas, his personal interaction with the people, and his friendship. He is truly a very capable person who has demonstrated that collaboration with partners brings success to all.

Two NPS agencies Give Thanks for Trails Council's Efforts

Work by the Trails Council was officially recognized by two National Park agencies.

National Park Volunteer Program Manager Mike Malone sent a letter to SMMTC thanking them for donating $300 to the National Public Lands Day which was held on September 24th, 2011. The donation assisted in providing lunches to over 140 trail work volunteers at Leo Carrillo and Pt. Mugu State Parks.

Trails Council volunteers also work on the Channel Islands, off the coast of Oxnard-Ventura. The islands may be considered a westward extension of the Santa Monica Mountains. A letter has been received from Channel Islands National Park Superintendent Russell Galipeau, Jr. thanking Trails Council for ". . . your incredible contribution to improving the trail in the native plant garden." Galipeau further stated that Trails Council volunteers had widened and leveled for ADA accessibility the trail which is used by nearly 350,000 annual visitors.

New SMMNRA Visitor Center Opens at King Gillette

With the grand opening on Saturday, June 9th, the Santa Monica Mountains National Recreation Area will have a visitor center located within the park. Also, for the first time, it will be a multi-agency visitor center, representing all major park stewards: National Park Service (NPS), California State Parks (CSP) and the Santa Monica Mountains Conservancy (SMMC)/MRCA.

All volunteers at the visitor center will wear t-shirts with the same Santa Monica Mountains identity regardless for which agency they volunteer. The visitor center opening will serve as the launch of a uniform identity across all park agencies which will result in greater awareness of the park and its partners.

This will be the Park Service's first net zero visitor center in alignment with Department of Interior sustainability goals, exceeding Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design (LEED) Platinum status.

Annual BBT Trek begins May 5

The 11th annual seven-day trek along the Santa Monica Mountains' Backbone Trail will begin on May 5, 2012, providing a 65-mile guided back country experience within sight of the metropolis of Los Angeles. Event coordinator, Jerry Mitcham, reported that the event quickly sold out this year.

Hikers will assemble at the western end of the trail just off Pacific Coast Highway in Ventura County and hike about 10 miles daily until arriving on May 12 at Will Rogers State Historic Park in Pacific Palisades. The Backbone Trek 2012, organized by the Trails Council, provides an opportunity for people to have all their gear transported so they are better able to enjoy the Backbone Trail hike that travels along ridges, canyons and valleys.

National Trails Day, June 2

Volunteer trail workers are invited to the annual National Trails Day on June 2 at Rancho Sierra Vista, from 8:30 am to 12:30 pm. Volunteers are asked to bring their own lunch or snack and water. Also recommended are hat, sunscreen, long pants and gloves. Trail tools will be provided. Children under 18 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. No reservation is necessary. Call Mike Malone, 805-370-2317, for location and other information.

This event is held at many parks across the nation and is coordinated by the American Hiking Society.

Woody Smeck to Move to Yosemite

Woody Smeck, Superintendent of the Santa Monica Mountains National Recreation Area for over a decade, has been appointed as deputy superintendent of Yosemite National Park, effective in April, according to an announcement by Yosemite Superintendent Don Neubacher.

During his assignment here, Smeck has presided over the recreation area as it added thousands of acres of public open space. Working with partners from every level of government as well as those from community and non-profit groups, Smeck has helped shape everything from fire-fighting practices to educational outreach to preservation guidelines for sensitive wildlife habitats.

Smeck said Neubacher first reached out to him about joining the Yosemite team about 1½ years ago. With his youngest daughter still in high school, the timing wasn't right. Now that she's graduating at the end of this school year, Smeck decided to accept the offer. He'll head to Yosemite in early April and live in park service housing until his wife, Karen, can join him. They plan to buy a home in Mariposa.

He said he'll miss his Santa Monica Mountains stomping grounds, where he got his professional start in 1991 as a young landscape architect with degrees from Cal Poly Pomona. Smeck reached the recreation area's top job in 2001.

As he prepares to venture north to Yosemite, he acknowledged that he'll miss the lesser known but equally beloved natural treasures in the Santa Monica Mountains. "Oh wow, there are so many incredible places. If I had to pick one, the place that's the closest manifestation of heaven for me is the Old Boney Trail in Point Mugu State Park," he said. "It is just such a pristine, wild, raw, natural environment. It is spectacular."
